Local Ambulance Service Director Recognized by State Department of Health

Colorado Springs, CO, May 22, 2006 - On Friday May 19, 2006 the Colorado Department of Health and the Emergency Medical Services Association of Colorado (EMSAC) held their annual EMS Gala Awards Dinner. Ted Sayer, Director of Operations for American Medical Response of El Paso County, was awarded Administrator of the Year for the State of Colorado.

This award honors an individual EMS administrator who has become a leader in EMS and serves as a role model for EMS managers throughout the state. Sayer has been part of the EMS system in El Paso County for 13 years. He started as a paramedic, moved up to supervisor, manager and has been the director for the past six years.

“I have known and worked with Ted Sayer for many years and have always found his ability to work collaboratively with others in the county and find solutions to problems remarkable. He has been the key player in resolving situations between agencies that provide ambulance transport. Ted has always ensured the ‘what is best for the patient’ is the priority,” said Darin Anstine, Fire Chief, Fountain, CO.

American Medical Response Inc., (www.amr.net) America’s leading provider of medical transportation, is locally operated in 35 states. More than 18,000 AMR paramedics, EMTs and other professionals transport nearly four million patients nationwide each year in emergency, critical and non-emergency situations. Operating a fleet of approximately 4,400 vehicles, AMR is headquartered in Greenwood Village, CO.
