Strong Leadership For a Life-Saving Business

Colorado Springs, CO January 4, 2007 - American Medical Response (AMR), local provider of EMS (Emergency Medical Service) and largest ambulance company in the United States, announced the promotion of several leaders this month.

Mark Bruning, previously the Vice-President of Operations, has been named as the Central Division Chief Operating Officer (COO). Bruning started his EMS career in the 1980's as an Emergency Medical Technician (EMT) and, proving his leadership skills and knowledge of the business, continued to excel in the industry. Mr. Bruning has been with AMR and its predecessor companies for more than 23 years. "Mark has the skills and expertise it takes to lead this division," says AMR's CEO, Bill Sanger. "Our concentration is reaching our patients and helping those who need us the most. This change in organizational leadership will help us do just that."

Mark has chosen a seasoned and respected group of individuals to help lead the new Central Division. Ted Sayer, now Central Division General Manager, is responsible for operations in Colorado Springs, Colorado. Ted began his EMS career in 1983 and joined AMR in 1993. Mr. Sayer has a genuine care and concern for his employees and through his leadership, his operation won National Operation of the Year honors from NAEMT (the National Association of Emergency Medical Technicians).

Serving Southern and Western Colorado, Scott Lenn has also been promoted to General Manager for AMR's Central Division. He is responsible for operations in Pueblo County and Fremont County, Colorado. Scott has been with AMR and its predecessor companies since 1981. Known as an employee advocate, Scott has been called "caregiver inspired" and has a keen eye for watching detail, traits that are appreciated by many.

AMR congratulates these individuals on their accomplishments and recent promotions. We are also proud that this operation is accredited by CAAS (The Commission on Accreditation of Ambulance Services) the gold standard for ambulance services and has passed stringent review from those who know the industry best.

American Medical Response Inc., (www.amr.net) America's leading provider of medical transportation, is locally operated in 36 states and the District of Columbia.
